

Fled The Altar

© 2022 Sophia Scott

I've gotta tell you something
There's nothing I pride more than my own
And I've been meaning to tell you
You fucked up as a friend first and foremost

Does silence make you crazy?
Heard you moved to this city

I've got this innate feeling
There's nothing you pride more than your own

You left me on the coldest night
I won't act like I wasn't plotting my flight
If love's the fire, then pride's the ice
We fled the altar

I'm just imagining something
If I'd said "It's not you, it's me"
Would I be dripping in something
Other than animosity?

Does silence make you crazy?
Hope I haunt this city

And if you take away something
There's nothing I defend more than home

You left me on the coldest night
I won't act like I wasn't plotting my flight
If love's the fire, then pride's the ice
We fled the altar
Were you scared you'd lose yourself
In the name of somebody else?
If love's the fire, then pride will melt
We fled the altar

Head knows heart deserves better
Heart just turns its head
We could have fought for each other
But we just fled

Between the two who had the last word?
Staying quiet won't make you unheard
Love's the war, pride revolts
We fled the altar

You left me on the coldest night
I won't act like I wasn't plotting my flight
If love's the fire, then pride's the ice
We fled the altar
Were you scared you'd lose yourself in the name of somebody else?

If love's the fire, then pride will melt
We fled the altar
Fled the altar
Fled the altar.